On

Management of Radiation Toxicities

Organised by,

Jawaharlal Nehru Cancer Hospital and Research Centre ,
Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh

Course Goal

As the patients' awareness and their participation in treatment decisions increase, we the clinicians have been more concerned about the quality of life issues in addition to the clinical outcomes. With advent of newer and more precise radiation delivery techniques the management of acute and late toxicity has become much more crucial. In this course, we have planned current evidence-based, structured and comprehensive lectures which will help manage these events during and after radiotherapy.

Organising Institute

Since its inception, AROI has been associated with inculcating and promoting academic activities in the subject and its allied branches amongst the young and budding radiation oncologists of the country to improve the overall standard of PG teaching and acquiring good clinical practice.

Jawaharlal Nehru Cancer Hospital and Research Centre has been the pioneer in dedicated cancer care and research in Central India. This institute has been providing contemporary and state of the art facilities for treatment of cancer. The Department of Radiation Oncology is equipped with Telecobalt, Clinac, Halcyon and 24 channel HDR Brachytherapy. We are also accredited with National Board of Education for DNB training.
