“PALLIATIVE MEDICINE IN ONCOLOGY”

Organising Institute

SGPGI,
Lucknow, Uttar Pradesh.

Course Goal

The proposed course "Palliative Medicine in Oncology" targets trainees of Radiation Oncology and has been conceived such that each cancer site with its peculiar symptom complexes will be dealt with a customised approach. Besides didactic lectures, case-based reflections and role plays, interactive group discussions after each talk will be encouraged and participants share experiences. The goal is to provide an appetiser and have a peek at different dimensions of cancer management, with a view to visualise the concept of holistic cancer care. The course faculty will be clinical / radiation oncologists with an interest in palliative care and also palliative care specialists from India.

Organising Institute

SGPGIMS is a Tertiary Care Institute on the outskirts of the city of Lucknow which is nestled in a forest like area, close to nature with interesting wildlife.

The Department of Radiotherapy, at the Sanjay Gandhi Post Graduate Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow, has for the past 3 decades, focussed on holistic, cost-effective, evidence-based cancer care. The resident training in the department includes contemporary radiotherapy practice, administration of systemic treatments and providing supportive and palliative care to the cancer afflicted person in context, all the way till the end of life.

Over 100 alumni have been trained in the department and they have had an opportunity to work along with other collaborative specialties, on case to case basis. These well trained individuals are now providing comprehensive cancer care in several centres within India and elsewhere. Training programs include an MD program with an intake of 4 candidates each and 7 Senior Resident positions for the following 3 years with an option to pursue a 1- year Post Doctoral Certificate Course in 'Advanced Radiotherapy Techniques' or 'Palliative Care in Oncology'. We hope to provide a fruitful and an enriching experience during this course.
